Cover Sheet for Online Version of 1998 990

The Evergreen State Society provides people and organizations with tools and encouragement for building community. It was established in 1990.

Primary Services Provided.

- Creating forums for the exploration of community-related issues and ideas. In cooperation with the Center for Ethical Leadership, we have offered monthly public breakfast meetings under the title "Civil Society in Everyday Life." We also organize occasional roundtables for members and friends of the Society – the most recent was with Dean Marc Lindenberg of the Evans School of Public Affairs at UW – for exchange of views and information
- Collecting, composing, organizing and distributing useful information for community leaders through the Internet. The Society maintains a list of state agencies whose work impacts Washington nonprofits as a part of its website at http://www.tess.org/misc/gov2.htm. The Society has been the source of the widely used Nonprofit FAQ (Frequently Asked Questions) since 1994 and, in December 1998, took over responsibility for the Internet Nonprofit Center (http://www.nonprofits.org). A further project at this site is devoted to facilitating the posting of completed information returns (Form 990) on the Internet.
- Encouraging community service. The Society publishes Front Steps, a newsletter with advice and examples that support neighborly behavior by people in low- and moderate-income areas. The Winter 1998 issue of Front Steps was distributed to 50,000 households in 125 neighborhoods across the country. The content of each issue is also posted on the Society's website. The Society presents Evergreen Awards annually, based on nominations by its members identifying people who have made remarkable contributions to the communities of Washington state. In all, more than 150 Washingtonians – both famous and obscure – have been recognized in this way.
- Research and publication on nonprofit organizations and related public policy questions. The Society issued Nonprofits in Washington, the first systematic review of the subject, in 1994. A new edition will be published later in 1999.
- Influencing public policies for the benefit of community-building organizations. The Society convened a working group on the policies and administration of Washington's charitable solicitations regulations. As a result of these discussions, the Secretary of State's office made several significant improvements in procedures for nonprofits seeking funds from the public. Similar discussions on the policy questions involved in fundraising online have just begun.
